

Himabindu Lanka, MD, FACP

Himabindu Lanka, MD FACP is an Academic Hospitalist and Geriatrician at Cooper University Hospital in Camden, NJ.

She finished medical school at Ross University in 2011. She trained at St. Joseph's regional medical center for internal medicine and Temple University Hospital for Geriatric Medicine. She is double board certified in Internal Medicine and Geriatrics. She has worked in an academic setting since her graduation with a passion to teach Geriatrics.

She is now working for Cooper University Hospital and teaches at Cooper Medical School of Rowan University. She is also actively involved with ACP-NJ and is a liaison for NJ goals of care coalition. She likes to draw and play violin for fun.